Our house in rural outskirts of Massa Martana

Lazy Day

Sometimes it is best to simply stop and smell the roses - if they are not dead yet. A sleep-in to find the sky overcast and the temperature down substantially. We decided to take a stroll around our rural area. The usual vines and olive groves plus fallow fields, some whiteish/yellow with dry grass, some freshly tilled but the sods as dry as ever given the heat. We stopped often to enjoy the birds chirping and there was even a bit of slight breeze to rustle the leaves.

We completed a circuit walking past a number of neighbour's houses. Then it was time for a cooling swim and a late breakfast. We have decided to go out for dinner tonight - pasta, pizza and maybe even wash it down with a Chianti. OMG!! Did I just hear thunder?? Its pouring rain outside!

We purchased a carton of what we thought was sweet grape juice. It's a very refreshing drink watered down with ice cold water on a hot day. Opened it up but yuk - realised it was "rosso vino" claret - cheap wine!!
