Another BBQ

A sleep in, a leisurely breakfast and then a long walk with the dogs prefaced a magnificent BBQ lunch with Ian and Debra (and 3 children) at their country estate in Savigny. They invited us back to celebrate the sale of their lovely French country house so we were able to again farewell their pet rabbit Lily and two cats Tinker and Misty. A great afternoon eating, drinking and talking about affairs of state, children, the economy, British comedy shows, Brexit and lots more. Ian works at the Australian embassy in

Smelling roses

The comfy seating and the magnificent view across Lake Geneva to Mont Blanc is enough to take your breath away. We are going to miss the forever changing kaleidoscope of clouds, mist, rain and sunshine across the glistening lake. It is so nice to relax and refresh after a hearty BBQ and chin wag. Life as a tourist can be exhausting at times but today is not one of those days. Tomorrow we get ready for the return of the lord and lady of the manor and sadly Garry and Cheryl have to book

KEEPING FIT? We now know what its like to try to steer a lump of concrete when it decides it does not want to go the way you want it to go!!

GUARD DOG? Being on guard means you can be on the look out for intruders and foxes and other dogs while enjoying the view. Saw a fox walking across this area this morning. Guard dogs asleep!!

COATS ANYONE? We were going up to the mountains the other day and decided to borrow some of Tony and Kelly's winter coats. Came home without wearing them - Swiss summers are so hot
