Steyr - Eye Candy

Saturday marks the weekly market day in Steyr, so Heather felt it was the perfect opportunity to again engage in a walk into town. Despite the unexpectedly pleasant weather, we bundled up warmly and made our way to the downtown area. Although the number of stalls were limited, each one held its own charm, making for a homely centrepiece to the Stadtplatz.

For breakfast, we indulged in a taste of local cuisine at the Austrian Sausage Cart. I opted for a traditional pork and bacon sausage with sauerkraut, while Heather savoured the cheese infused option with a dab of mustard, both quintessentially Austrian choices.

Subsequently, we strolled leisurely through the town, stopping to check out a couple of gift shops and even an eBike store. Our meandering path eventually led us to a scenic spot overlooking the scenic Steyr River. The water's stillness at the weir struck us as particularly lovely, and the numerous photographs we captured truly framed the glorious beauty of this place.

We consider ourselves fortunate to reside for 3 weeks in one of the most picturesque towns in this country. We took several moments to pause and appreciate the river's beauty, immersing ourselves in the surroundings and relishing the sensation that life is truly wonderful.
