Our view for today

A Wet Day

We woke late and luxuriated in doona land. Outside, the rain drizzled down. With much reluctance we donned our winter woolies and raincoats, drove up the mountain and started our short trek up to the lookout tower. We aim to do some exercise every day. Half way up and we remembered the old saying: "age brings wisdom." We turned around, hopped back in the car, turned on the heater and drove slowly down the misty mountain. The Inter-sport superstore provided me with some warm gloves while Hofer provided Heather with some much needed gum boots.

It took a while for us to work out what these were in the sports shop. Winter is coming and downhill racing on a personal sled is a thrill that everyone enjoys in Europe.

There is no doubt.
Football is Football in Austria.
