Farewell Steyr

Clean up day today and packing in readiness for our flight back to UK tomorrow. With a couple of hours spare at the end of the day we decided to take a last look at Steyr. Our walk took us over to the other side of the Enns River where by chance we somehow ended up finding a lookout platform with a spectacular view over the town. The ride up in the glass lift was particularly amazing. We sat and enjoyed our last look at Steyr. On the walk home, the city centre was filled with people strolling around and enjoying the setting sun. A warm shower and an early night.
